'It was not easy having someone follow you all the time,' the 18-year-old continued.

She said it was hard to 'plan every single second,' especially because it was something that she hadn't thought about before.

'Once I was like, "their only job is to protect me, I'm gonna focus on myself and have them do their job," it made it so much easier,' Kai said.

During the podcast, she also touched on how she feels about politics.

Paul asked her thoughts about Kamala Harris, the Democratic candidate who ran against her Grandpa last year, to which Kai replied that she would never want to get involved in politics.
